Release of Color Chat 1.0

Orange Park, Fl. – Dec 15, 2011 – Inicman Co. would like to announce the release of Color Chat 1.0.

Color Chat is an alphabet in which sounds are represented by color rather than shape. Color Chat is a visual system in which coloring is communicating both verbally and artistically and is an exciting way to encode messages, and send those messages as an attachment via e-mail, and well as paper messages. The uniqueness of this program is that there are multiple formats to encode the message using the Colorbet^{TM} from the simple Color Chat^{TM}, Duble Chat^{TM,} and Tripl Chat$^{TM.}$ The Complete package also includes a 20 page 3-ring notebook with pockets to save your work, or a spiral bound booklet.

This Color Chat 1.0 is designed to be used with Microsoft XP, Vista, and 7 Operating systems.

Currently the software can only be purchased from the company web site which has partnered with SWREG Digital River as the payment processor. SWREG has been processing payments since 1994
